

2017 Masterworks Watercolor Workshop

Jae Drummond

Hosted by New Mexico Watercolor Society

A native New Mexican, J.K. Drummond has been influenced by many excellent local artists, the foremost being her father and teacher, David Drummond. Jae's art training started early. Dr. Drummond attached a roll of butcher paper to a board, creating a portable drawing table with an infinite supply of paper. According to Jae, by the time you have filled several rolls of paper, you draw pretty well. Art education continued throughout Jae's formative years. She attended elementary school at the School for Creative and Performing Arts in Cincinnati, where she received a classic art education.

Both her formal schooling and her love of illustration focused on the human figure. Jae began sneaking into college life drawing classes at the age of twelve, and filching her mother's medical books for the anatomical drawings.

Today, J.K. Drummond believes in the worth of realism, the beauty of the figure, and the utility of watercolor to express both.

Jae has received awards at the New Mexico Arts & Crafts Fair, including the prestigious First Lady's Choice Award, and an Award of Excellence at a Masterworks of New Mexico show. Her paintings can be found at fine New Mexico galleries and art shows.
